Flex Rallies Support for Producers at the Illinois State Capitol for Insurance Industry Legislative Day

ROSEMONT, Ill. (Feb. 29, 2012) – Flexible Benefit Service Corporation (Flex) is standing behind health insurance producers and taking action at Insurance Industry Legislative Day in Springfield, Ill. on Feb. 29, 2012. At this annual event more than 400 health insurance producers, company representatives and financial planners will assemble to present their positions to legislators and constitutional officers and hear from them on critical industry issues.

Flex is sponsoring Insurance Industry Legislative Day and will be attending to show its support for health insurance producers. Flex will appear alongside members of Illinois' most influential insurance associations including, Independent Insurance Agents of Illinois (IIAI), Illinois Insurance Association (IIA), Illinois State Association of Health Underwriters (ISAHU), Illinois Association of Mutual Insurance Companies (IAMIC), National Association of Insurance & Financial Advisors – Illinois (NAIFA) to lobby members of the General Assembly on current issues affecting the insurance industry.

“Gathering at the Illinois State Capitol with industry representative puts us in a unique position to evoke change that will secure the producer role in the future of the health insurance business.” said President of Flex, John DiVito. “With health care reform on the horizon, now is the time to act.”

The Flex General Agency gives Illinois health insurance producers the power to go further with free access to top health insurance carriers nationwide, dedicated individual and group sales and service teams, sales resources and continuing education opportunities through FlexUNIVERSITY™.
